HEADLINE: Stacy Williams Appointed as Interim Parks and Recreation Director

Stacy Williams, a native of Camden County, launched her career in Local Government with the Camden County Tax Office. She holds a Bachelor of Science in Business Administration and is currently pursuing a Master of Science in Accounting. Stacy began her tenure with the City of Elizabeth City more than 24 years ago in the Customer Service Division of the Finance Department. After five years, she made the jump to Parks and Recreation where she served under the tutelage of long-time (former) Director Jim Overman.

In her more-than two decades with the Parks and Recreation Department, Stacy has worked with all age groups, from youth to the elderly. She became a Certified Parks and Recreation Professional four years ago and is now working towards the highest certification, Certified Parks and Recreation Executive. A career highlight for Stacy has been the full circle moments of seeing the children she worked with grow into adults and bring children of their own to Parks and Recreation.

As the Superintendent of the Senior Center and Special Events, Stacy has led the significant growth of the new ECPC Senior Center and introduced innovative programs for the elderly. In organizing community events such as the Independence Day Fireworks and the Annual Holiday Parade, Stacy has enjoyed collaborating with numerous community partners and observing the positive impact of these events.

Stacy's extensive training, years of service, and in-depth knowledge of Local Government budgeting, processes, and Parks and Recreation brings valuable expertise to the department while honoring the legacy of her predecessors. As a mother of four sons, Stacy comprehends Parks and Recreation from the perspective of both a parent and a professional. Our Parks and Recreation Department will be in good hands under Stacy's watch.
